

Planning the Future & Meeting for Matching

Bilateral work meeting for Kom-Mit-Nadev - German-Israeli Volunteer Program for Young Israelis in Germany October 22 – 24, 2013 in Berlin

The German-Israel Volunteer Program Kom-Mit-Nadev starts into its fourth year. 56 young Israelis have so far been or are still working as volunteers in projects within German civil society. The last three years were used as a pilot phase to build up the general bilateral framework and develop the curriculum and schedule of the program. Many different questions and issues have been discussed, and - thanks to a great number of supporting organizations - the idea of the project could be successfully put in to practice.

After three years of a pilot phase many important decisions for the project have been taken and it is situated on a good basis. Thanks to the BFD (National Volunteer service in Germany) the financial part is mostly taken care of. Coordinating tasks and accompanying seminars could so far be provided by ConAct & Israel Youth Exchange Authority and financially supported by the Federal Youth Ministry and the Israel Youth Exchange Authority. The former coordinators of the program have continued to support the ongoing structural and educational work with great personal commitment.

Now it is necessary to considerate and take decisions for the future: Where and how can we provide the necessary coordination and advertising for the project in the future? Will it be possible to hand over the program to the field of long-term volunteer services, now that the pilot phase has ended? Which German and Israeli organizations can and are willing to take responsibility for parts of the program?

The presentation of the evaluation of Kom-Mit-Nadev's pilot phase shall help to find answers to these questions and inspire us for future plannings. Therefore we would like to invite you to discuss and plan in the bilateral working frame – including plans for concrete cooperations for the next volunteer year 2014-2015!
