German-Israeli Writing Lab | April 13-16, 2018 | Berlin

You have participated in a German-Israeli youth exchange? You came back with lots of impressions and would like to share them with other young people? You are creative, expressive and interested in writing? You are interested to participate in a German-Israeli writing lab together with other young people from Germany and Israel?

So you should contact us today! Participate in the German-Israeli Writing Lab!

THE PROJECT

Under the label "We don't forget we go dancing", young people are invited to write down their stories of encounters and experiences in the other country – Germany or Israel – in the form of reports or fictionalized in short stories. It is also about humorous, fun-loving moments that express the complex and ever-changing relationships between people from Germany and Israel. Clichés and prejudices should be discussed as well as fears and love adventures.

The stories are published on the website www.dont-forget-dance.org. In June 2018 the most impressive and remarkable texts will be presented at a public event on the occasion of Israel's 70th anniversary.

THE GERMAN-ISRAELI WRITING LAB

At our writing workshop in Berlin, you will come together with other young people from Germany and Israel as well as well-known authors from both countries. Together, you will brood over the first ideas for your stories, discuss the crafting aspects of texts, and reflect on the personal, social and political experience behind your experiences. In the end, there will be YOUR story, which will be included in the online library "We don't forget we go dancing".
